VOL. X—NO. 17 FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1947 3 CENTS

A BIT OF HEAVEN IN '47

By PAUL D. EMMONS

Well, the date of this writing is Easter Sunday, and, judging by the temperature, the Ruler of the Universe is promising us a bit of heaven in the matter of weather hereabouts, if all the days can be as mild as this one was.

It certainly seemed good. But Chicago wasn't so favored. Was that because it elected a Democratic administration?

Speaking of politics, Light horse Harry Truman has spoken his piece, and he's considerably heftier than he used to be. The Gallup pills show that. Right now he's furnishing us with a Truman doctrine to go with the Monroe doctrine. Compare the two, and they show what a century and a quarter of "progress" have done to us.

In 1820 we were building a fence around our own back yard. Now we're building it around the whole world.

Well, if we don't look after our own fences, nobody else is going to do it for us. And our fences are apparently on the borders of every democratic country. So much for "progress."

Bill Cunningham's article in the Easter Sunday Herald is based on an interview he had with an American officer who spent months in Russia helping them with their war effort. It shows what "progress" has done to the international picture and what it has so far failed to do for Russia.

Briefly, it has shoved a nation which is three hundred years behind the times in its national outlook and knowledge of the rest of the world into a key position in international relations, where it can either make or break the hopes of a permanent peace.

The Russian people are living in absolute squalor and reprivation, yet they are so ignorant that they think they have the finest country in the world, with living conditions superior to those in any other spot on the globe. How are you going to teach them any different, the iron curtain being what it is?

Yet we have thousands of people here in these enlightened United States who are fellow travelers on the party line.

We talk about outlawing the Communist party.

It would be a darned good thing if we could transport every Communist and fellow traveler in America over to Russia, and make them live there for the rest of their days.

But what would be tyranny—what? Not in accordance with American principles.

Well, there's more "progress" for your.

Just where is the world "progressing?" Well, hope springs eternal in the human breast, especially at Easter time, and we can only keep plugging, and hope that the Russians will change their brand.

Bill Cunningham's informant thinks that vodka is half of what ails them. Says that it is heavy, depressing liquor which slugs a person down, makes him feel low and depressed at times, and out of sorts with everybody.

Yet the Russians drink gallons of it, and are offended if their guests don't do the same.

No wonder that Lighthorse Harry doesn't want to have another interview with Joe Stalin.

Lorraine Hemeon Easter Bride of George F. Carter

On Easter Sunday, Miss Beverly Lorraine Hameon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris P. Hemeon of 50 Lowell street became the bride of George Freeman Carter, son of Mrs. Laura Carter of Lynn, at the Methodist Church. The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. C. B. Carmichel. The organist was Mrs. Wilbur Staveley and Miss Betty Doyle was soloist. The church was decorated with palms, Easter lillies and calla lilies. Escorted by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown entrain trimmed with chantilly lace and her fingertip veil of tulle fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white snapdragons, white roses and white pinks.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Wyatt Ingalls of North Reading, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Wallace Barrows of Wilmington and Mrs. Frank Reilly of Boston classmates of the bride. The matron of honor wore a yellow headpiece and the bridesmaids wore orchid tulle gowns with matching headpieces. They carried arm bouquets of yellow daffodils and orchid sweet peas. Best man was L. N. Reynolds of Lynn, brotherin-law of the bride groom. Serving as ushers were James Walsh and Ray Heise, friends of the bridegroom. Gifts of the bride to her attendants were pearls, and the best man and ushers received wallets.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors, and assisting in the receiving line were the bride's mother, who wore a green crepe dress with matching accessories, and the mother of the bridegroom, who was gowned in blue crepe with matching accessories. Both mothers were corsages of Talisman roses. Miss Jeannette Williams, classmate of the bride was in charge of the guest book.

A buffet luncheon was served to about 75 guests. The bride is a graduate of the local high school and attended a business school. She was a WAVE in the World War II as a Ph.M. 2-C, having served three years. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lynn high school and served as an air pilot during the last war. The bride's going away outfit was a brown wool suit with matching accessories and wore a corsage of sweet peas. After a wedding trip to Montreal, the couple will reside in Lynn.

Seek Funds For China In Drive Starting May 1

American aid for China is sorely needed immediately if that nation is to rise as a new democracy from the pitiful plight in which it now finds itself, beset on the one hand with starvation and turmoil and on the other by the attempts of Reds to take advantage of that situation to make the country a communist satellite, according to Allen Forbes, honorary chairman of the Greater Boston United Service to China appeal, which will open its campaign in Medford and 54 other Greater Boston communities on May 1.

Mr. Forbes is a leader in Banking circles and president of the State Street Trust Company. He is also a national director of United Service to China and has been closely identified with many civic and public spirited movements for many years.

Daniel R. Weedon, of Newton, a Boston industrialist, is the appeal chairman.

"Secretary of State Marshall, who spent considerable time in China in an attempt to solve the pressing, vital problems of that country and to bring rival factions together for a united China is authority for the assertion that China urgently needs now the help of our government and her people", Mr. Forbes said.

"If America wishes to foster in China the avowed purpose of the United States to see all nations constituted of free peoples under the four freedoms guaranteed by the Atlantic Charter, now is the time for America to lend generous aid and strong support to China.

"That nation needs food and medical aid now. It needs leadership in education, medical science, agriculture, government and other fields if it is to become a self-sustaining nation. This is the type of program which the United Service to China plan calls for."

Victoria Samuelian, lyric coloratura soprano, will provide a program of music and entertainment for the afternoon's meeting.

An Old Saying

But Ever True—

It Pays to Advertise

Truant Bottles' Hit Milk Supply; Beverage Drought Threatened

Jackie Lamb does his little bit for the bottle roundup drive by helping his mother collect empties for prompt return to the store.

"Truant bottles" are threatening the supply of milk and soft drinks, and industry spokesmen say that American housewives can solve the problem.

With glass container manufacturers unable to increase output because of raw material shortages, the need for bottles is so serious that a nationwide campaign to drive "truants" from kitchens, cellars, basements and garages began this week.

The goal is the 25,000,000 empty milk and 10,000,000 empty beverage bottles believed to have accumulated in American homes. Some industry spokesmen believe these figures are too conservative.

Representatives of both industries agree that the complete cooperation of the housewife is needed to get "truant" bottles back into use. They point out that for every bottle of milk delivered, the dairy must have eight bottles in the process of washing, filling and in storage. The beverage bottlers, likewise, must maintain four bottles for every one delivered.

Cooperation of retailers handling milk and beverages is being sought by the three industries. Driver-salesmen and other employes of bottling plants are being enlisted in the drive. This campaign, it was pointed out, should make it easier for housewives who are anxious to do their part in maintaining the flow of milk and such typically American products as beer and soft drinks. ●

Annual Exhibition Of Men's Art Club At Paine's April 15-30

Paintings by G. Russell Mann and Darwin E. Gardner, two Winchester artists, will be included in the Twentieth Annual Exhibition of the Business Men's Art Club of Boston ("The Men Who Paint for Fun") which opens next Tuesday, April 15, in the fourth floor gallery of Paine's of Boston, 81 Arlington street.

G. Russell Mann, former president of the Business Men's Art Club, and well known for his activities in conjunction with the Winchester Art Association, is exhibiting four oils, "Cedars Hotel, Hillsboro, N. H.", "Lumberman's End, Martinsville, Me." "Davis' Cove, Maine" and "Antrim, N. H." In business life, Mr. Mann is production superintendent at the New England Confectionary Company. He has been painting as a diversion for some 10 years, having studied with John Enser and Emile Gruppe. Mr. Mann lives at 17 Fenwick road, Winchester.

"Himalayan Dawn," "Kasmir Spring" and "Road to Kashimr" are water colors being exhibited by Darwin E. Gardner, 5 Feltz road, Winchester. He received his early art training from his father and his father's friends, Messrs. Hopkinson Smith, Sargeant, Hawley and others.

Of his art Mr. Gardner says, "I paint only scenes I wish to remember, and if you paint a building you will never forget it since the very act of putting it down on paper obliges to observe details great pictures,—just pleasant pictures of things I like to recall to memory; pictures of scenes as I see them and not as someone who has never seen them things they should be."

"The Business Men's Art Club of Boston, described as "the men who paint for fun," meets the Monday evenings a month in the Fine Arts Museum School on the Fenway. Activities include studio work, criticism and instruction, Bull, Parish and others.

"Here's the Pitch"

By "Bump" Hadley
WEZ-WEZA Sportscaster and Former Major League Pitcher

HADLEY

There's considerable difference between the pitching assignments handed out by Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers and those meted out by Manager Eddie Sawyer, who started all three of his veteran hurlers against the Cincinnati Reds in the season's opening series. Durocher, as you probably know, is a former World Series pitcher himself, and he started all three of his hurlers against the Reds in the belief that they would be more effective against a team with which they were familiar. Sawyer, on the other hand, is a former baseball player who has had no experience on the mound, and he apparently figured that the Reds would be more familiar with the offerings of Dutch Leonard, Ken Heintzelman and Harry Brecheen than they would be with those of Curt Simmons, Jim Konstanty and Russ Meyer, who are relatively unknown quantities to the Cincinnati batters.

Personally I'm in favor of Durocher's thinking in this matter. I think that Leonard, Heintzelman and Brecheen will be more effective against the Reds than Simmons, Konstanty and Meyer would be. Why? Because I've been around baseball long enough to know that the Reds have been batting against Leonard, Heintzelman and Brecheen for years, and they've had plenty of opportunity to study their pitching styles. They know what to expect from them, and they know how to hit them. Simmons, Konstanty and Meyer, on the other hand, are unknown quantities to the Reds, and they'll be more difficult to hit for that reason.

Of course, Durocher's decision to start Leonard, Heintzelman and Brecheen against the Reds in the season's opening series, Today will doubtless end in defeat for the Dodgers, but that's something that's beside the point. The point is that Durocher's decision is the right one, and that he's going to win more games than he loses with it in the long run.

After all, that's what the manager will get to see. The one that runs out of the park, but keeps winning $70,000 a year to push his ball club right. He isn't getting that kind of money to be a Ben Wade himself.

The big thrill is still in seeing the ride of Bobby Doerr. The left field kite may be all right when there are bases on the corners, but the thrill is against him, but the crowd likes it, and takes a fiendish delight in seeing, started at the right field fence.

HORSE SHOW AT BOSTON GARDEN APRIL 25, 26, 27 1947

The 2nd annual New England Horse Show that opens at the Garden on April 25 for a three-day stand appears headed for an early entry-closing according to Director Ed Ratner.

Entries from every part of the United States and Canada have been pouring in, Walden says and he just hasn't the stable room to take care of all the people who are anxious to show.

Last season the big charity show was pretty much confined to New England horses, but now the biggest stables on the circuit have forwarded their entry lists. New York will have a fine representation again this spring, but they will have plenty of competition from out of State horse fanciers.

Among the first local entries to reach Walden's desk were six hunters from the Green Ridge Norfolk Stables. The Norfolk presentation included two Open Jumpers, Zabrula and Cam, entered Hunter Lady Varela and three saddle horses, Lady Allen Paddock Plate and Beau Prader. The two Jumpers and the hunter are owned by William Schlumberger of Norfolk and all of the horses were at the show last season. Lady Valerie is the Working Hunter champion of New England. The pride of the stable in the saddle is Lady Allen owned and ridden by E. Nelson of Providence The Lady made her first showing at the Garden last season and was a sensation. She captured the 3-gaited over 12.2 Championship and was second in the Open class She went on from Boston to win the New England Open class. Fashion Plate, owned by Ed Valerie of Woonsocket, R. I. is a new horse in New England, but boasts a fine background in Illinois where the horse was bred. Fashion Plate has been entered in 3-gaited over 15.2 Saddle event and in the combination.

To Form Baseball League

The first step in forming a baseball league in the town was taken Sunday by members of the Booster club. A meeting was called at the rectory and about 75 boys from the fifth grade to high school age were present as well as many adult members who will have charge of the managing of the teams. It was decided to have four teams in the senior league and four teams in the junior league. Harry Stewart, chairman of the committee on baseball, was present and the following men will have charge of boys in their district: Lawrence Clahane of the Lake district; Henry Linnard, West Wilmington district; Joseph Mooney, Center district and George Thompson and Clarence Ethier north district.

School Delays

A water pipe leading to the drinking fountain on the second floor of the Whitehead school broke Monday afternoon and caused the water to leak all the way to the first floor. The principal, Miss A. Hazel Hartley sounded the fire drill and all filed out of the school in good order. School was suspended the remainder of the day and will also today, by Superintendent Stephen G. Bean.

—Christine Swenson, of 19 Adams Street, left last week with her son, Pvt. Adams for a two day vacation in Michigan, where she will be the guest of her son at Tufts College classmates whose home is in Bloomfield Hills, a suburb of Detroit.

—Paul Bigger, son of Mr and Mrs. Ralph Bigger, of Middlesex Avenue, North Wilmington, is a patient at St. John's Hospital in Lowell.

Dread Dutch Elm Disease Spreading

Squeezed like ham in a sandwich Middlesex, Worcester and Norfolk counties are caught between two fingers of destruction from the deadly Dutch elm disease, it was learned today in an update action, many fine old trees in these areas may be destroyed this year, they were told today.

The disease is not only invading from west Massachusetts, but here now is an equally serious threat from the east, said Ralph S. Mosley, area representative of the Bartlett Tree Expert Company.

Discovery of an outbreak of Dutch elm disease at Quincy, he said, makes it imperative," Mr Mosley said, "that every step possible be taken to prevent it spreading into Middlesex, Worcester and Norfolk counties."

Best preventative he explained, is tree sanitation, which means the removing and burning of all dead and diseased elm trees and their elm bark during

"Now is the time to do it," before May 1," Mr. Mosley said. "This will destroy the elm bark beetles which carry the infectious fungus disease."

The next step is a succession of sprays to prevent defoliation and the death of trees by the adventive insects.

The first spray should be applied when the leaves are emerging to one-third growth. The spray will help control the destructive adelphia beetle as well as the elm leaf beetle.

A second spray is recommended for the middle of June and a third in late July.

ABC will inaugurate a program of vital interest to women everywhere, when, on Monday, April 14, it launches its new program, "The Job," aired by Susan Adams, Mrs. Independence home economist.

Harvard Fights Infantile Paralysis

A $30,000 grant to the Harvard School of Public Health for a large-scale study on the relation of respiration and oxygen therapy in poliomyelitis has been approved by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. It was announced jointly today by Foundation President Basil O'Connor and James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University.

The grant brings to $238,500 the total in March of Dimes funds given by the Foundation to the University for research and education in the field of poliomyelitis.

Attempts will be made to determine objectively the nature and characteristics of the different types of respiratory involvement and to develop new techniques and devices for administering oxygen to children.

In studying children with polio, researchers will use several new methods developed at the University during the course of war investigations. Such methods have already been used in treating

A. A. A. Clubs To Oppose Gas Tax

According to James N. Keefe, President, the Massachusetts Federation of AAA Clubs will oppose the gasoline tax increase at the Hearing scheduled by the Taxation Committee in the State House, Thursday, April 10th.

The opposition of A. A. A. Clubs to the gas tax was made public by President Keefe in a statement to the press issued at the Lawrence Automobile Club, today.

Mr. Keefe pointed to the failure of many past efforts to get more money out of the motoring public and predicted a similar results this year.

The General Court always rejected a higher gasoline tax because it knew that motorists were paying their full share of government expense. The Court realized that any increase would be unfair and oppressive."

"In addition to the regular taxes paid by all residents of the state, motor vehicle owners contribute special taxes of over $30,000,000, yearly, for highways."

"The Highway Fund is now in good condition, and, on conservative estimate, will have an income during the year ahead fully sufficient for road construction and maintenance and matching Federal Aid.

"For the state to raise the rate in this situation would be grossly unfair to a large group of tax payers who have never failed in their duty," Mr. Keefe said.
